Are you living on the edge?

Today, nearly one out of every three families in the United States is considered to be low-income. Millions of American families are living on the edge of financial disaster. Even working as hard as they can, they are still barely able to make it from month to month.

It is not that people are working less. In fact, many of today's low-income individuals are working harder than they did before. But one major financial crisis, such as a child getting sick, the car breaking down, the furnace going out, or a spouse losing employment can send a once stable family spiraling. At a time when it seems like every monthly bill is going up, people simply can't afford a financial crisis.

At the Human Resources Development Council (HRDC), we envision a world in which individuals don't have to choose between heating their homes or feeding their families, where jobs pay a living wage and homes are affordable, where children receive early learning to promote healthy development, and all community members are provided equal opportunity, free from economic barriers, to achieve their full potential. Through our mission, we empower people in need through mobilizing and developing community resources by creating opportunities for success in Big Horn, Carbon, Stillwater, Sweet Grass and Yellowstone counties.

If you find yourself faced with choosing between feeding your family or paying a critical household expense, you are not alone. HRDC offers many resources for you, for your family and for your home, all in the name of helping people move forward. Because when good things happen here, the whole community thrives. Child Care

Child Care Assistance

Montana families are paying just over $9,000 a year to have an infant attend a full-time care center. For a low-income, working, single parent this could mean nearly 44% of their income is spent on child care. HRDC administers the State of Montana's Best Beginnings Childcare Scholarship in our five county region and Treasure County. Children on Best Beginnings must attend a licensed child care center, registered group or family child care home, or legally certified child care provider. Recipients of the scholarship program must meet work and income requirements.

Early Childhood Provider Services

Parents, children, and Montana's economy rely heavily on quality child care, which protects children and promotes healthy development. HRDC provides oversight and an array of resources to ensure child care providers in our five county region and Treasure County, are given the tools they need to remain compliant with state regulations while delivering a safe, affordable and quality service.

Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP): In an effort to reduce the costs of child care, while ensuring children receive healthy and nutritious meals, eligible child care providers are given cash reimbursement for serving meals to enrolled participants that meet Federal nutritional guidelines, outlined in the CACFP meal pattern. HRDC administers the CACFP for the Montana Department of Health and Human Services in our five county region as well as Custer, Fergus, Prairie, and Rosebud counties.

Education

Alternative Education

Earning a General Education Development (GED) diploma is the first step in breaking the poverty cycle. Low income individuals, 16 to 80+ years of age, who are in pursuit of a GED or who have been unsuccessful in achieving their GED, may apply to receive one-on-one, self-paced instruction from HRDC's certified teacher in Billings to better prepare for the 5-series Test for Adult Basic Education. Tutoring is also available for low-income, high school students for coursework, college prep readiness for the ACT, SAT, as well as drivers license written examination and remedial reading and math for all ages.

Emergency Services

Emergency Solutions Grant (ESG)

The Emergency Solutions program places emphasis on helping people in Yellowstone County quickly regain stability in permanent housing after experiencing a housing crisis and/or homelessness. Individuals deemed eligible for assistance who are seeking emergency shelter, homeless prevention, and rapid re-housing, will be assigned a case manager and required to meet once a month at a minimum. Shelters and housing must meet minimum safety, sanitation, and HUD standards for human habitation.

General Relief

General Relief is an assistance program available for individuals without dependents to provide rental assistance while they are waiting for approval of SSI/SSDI. In order to be eligible, individuals must meet the following criteria: No income in the household; be a resident of Yellowstone County for 90 days; be receiving food stamp benefits; have a disability that can be medically verified; and have applied for SSI/SSDI, but have not yet been approved.

I really enjoy when your Early Childhood trainers bring trainings to our community, thank you for sharing all of your tips and information.
